

Timothy W. Johnson

Of Counsel

Timothy W. (Tim) Johnson, former Vice-President at Coca-Cola Enterprises, has rejoined Smith, Currie & Hancock as “Counsel” and will focus on labor, employment, and related issues for firm clients. A graduate of Texas Law School, Tim was originally an associate and partner here, and has been a labor and employment lawyer for over thirty years.

At Coke, he was the corporate officer and senior manager over labor and employee relations for their 72,000 employees and 500 facilities in the US and beyond. In that capacity, he devised the strategies, approaches, and measurements to insure that employment-related business risks were anticipated and well managed. He also oversaw all labor negotiations, union organizing issues, employee grievances, complaints, and unfair labor practice claims, including wage-hour, contract benefits, and safety issues.

Tim has maintained close association with many of our attorneys, knows our practice well, and can be reached in our Atlanta office at (404) 582-8128 or twjohnson@smithcurrie.com.
